A Garden-based Education Workshop

6 / 19 / 12

LEARN LEAD GROW

Thank you for your interest in registering for the Garden-based Education Workshop. This one day workshop will be offered at Dawes School in Evanston on Tuesday, June 19th from 8:30 -3:30. Lunch will be included and you will earn CPDUs for your participation. It is necessary to register for this workshop with SAGE as well as for CPDUs. Complete the form below and email it to: Evanstonkeb@sbcglobal.net Alternatively you can mail the form to the: Evanston Ecology Center, 2023 McCormick, Evanston, IL 60202. Your registration will be confirmed by email.

Course Philosophy:

This workshop is grounded in the belief that nature is a superb tool for educating students and that edible school gardens in particular are rich in their potential for building a healthy future for our children. While SAGE's focus is on wellness and nutrition, it is also our strong belief that there is a school in every garden where we can educate across the curriculum. It is in this spirit that we will explore the possibilities of garden-based learning.

Description:

Focusing on the foundations, benefits, and teaching strategies of garden-based learning (GBL), this workshop will support the outdoor curriculum of FOSS, employ PBIS techniques, provide a packet of garden based lessons linked to existing standards, and through collaborative activities build a supportive network of educators and community volunteers.
